Student Arrangements: All students in the MA in International Relations program at Ft. Hood did not complete their program of study prior to the last date of educational instruction at Ft. Hood. Teach-out plans were developed for every student who was still in the program (I have copies if that would be helpful). The teach-out plans allowed the students to complete their degree requirements through our online MA in International Relations program. These arrangements were made in conjunction with the decision to close the Ft. Hood program, which also included the decision to not accept new students into the program. Therefore the teach-out arrangements were not in place (or necessary) at the time when students first enrolled in the program.
